ABOUT US:-

We offer a wide assortment of flowers including:-

- * Premium and Garden Spray Roses
- * Regular Spray Roses
- * Standard Roses
- * Hypericums
- * Anigozanthos

The farm is located at an altitude of 1850m to 1900m between 2 rivers on the fringes of Subukia forest. This allows the farm to enjoy a unique micro climate that gives our products a distinct quality and color. The farm employs use of organic manure on the flowers.

The farm incorporates the use of biological measures to control pests and disease. The farm enjoys a huge presence of the cinnamon chested African bee eater birds that traded their bee-eating habits for the allure of sumptuous butterflies and moths offering a natural solution to the caterpillar and false coding moth woes as they voraciously controlled the pest population. We have a forest cover of 30% and supplement our power needs with solar energy.

CORVUS DRONES

Data-driven growing appeals to everyone. At Corvus Drones, we view drones as the new human eyes—faster and more accurate. Our drone analyzes everything from seed germination to growth development and flowering stages. With a simple click on your mobile device, it autonomously flies through the greenhouse, providing automated measurements and a report in your inbox within one hour.

After the interest from rose growers at last year's IFTF, we spent the past year developing a specialized rose application. Initially, our yield prediction accuracy was only 25%, but we are excited to announce that we've improved this to 10%!

Mildew is a significant challenge for rose growers, leading to potential losses. To address this, we've developed a mildew detection application, currently being validated for various growth stages. This includes providing scouts with detection maps for comprehensive monitoring of their greenhouses. Looking ahead, we are eager to further enhance our applications and expand our capabilities to address other diseases affecting rose cultivation.
